For easy planning of cable and pipe transits

We Seal Your World

Upgraded features for easier planning

The improved version of the Roxtec Transit Manager, RTM Software, has several new features that simplify the design, planning and installation of cable and pipe transits.

The RTM Software is developed for design departments using Roxtec products. Designing transits with CAD programs can be time consuming, but the RTM Software allows you to cut corners through auto-planning and save time in all phases.

Easier planning

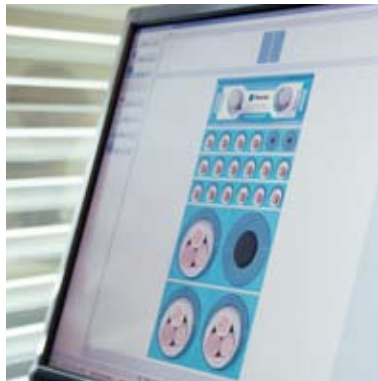

The new version means added products, modernized user interface and a new Custom Frame Designer as well as improved import and export routines. You can enter cables manually or import project data from external lists to generate automatic packing plans. Then you can print material lists for the purchasing department.

Weight calculation

With the new RTM Software, you can also calculate the weight of transits, include wedge kits and change data for cables belonging to several transits. Drawings and packing routines are improved. The plans can be exported as dxf files, and the created geometries imported in CAD programs.

Installation aid

The transit plans allow each transit to be documented, identified and labeled. Every frame opening is shown as a photograph for easy understanding. Packing plans can be handed to the installers for safe installation. The packing plans and the materials list minimize the risk for error and clearly simplify logistics: only the right products are brought on site.
